The Metropolitan Council is looking for people who would like to share their lived experiences with the highway system, as a part of the Highway System Harms, Impacts, and Mitigation Priorities Study.

The study aims to listen to those impacted by highway development and operation and find ways to create a more just and equitable transportation future.

The goals of this listening session are to:

- Explore the historical impacts of regional highways.
- Connect with people impacted by highways. This includes people who had to move, who have gotten sick, or who have lost money because of the highways.
- Determine opportunities to improve planning and development processes going forward, including ways to make highways less harmful to nearby communities.

If you would like to share your lived experiences with the highway system via our interactive online map, please visit: bit.ly/ShareYourHwyStory
